Introducing THE LIST

The editors and creative team of Pacific WEDDINGS are continually seeking innovative ways to make your wedding planning fun and easy, and our latest endeavor is The List. We hope that this special wedding journal will become your constant companion and resource as you make important decisions about your celebration.

Think of The List as your "little black book", with its compact directory of preferred vendors, fabulous fresh ideas, and room for personal notes and reminders. We created The List as a smaller version of Pacific WEDDINGS, keeping in mind that you will likely slip it into your handbag for easy reference, then after the wedding it becomes a wonderful memento of your journey! We've even provided The List online so you can download it into your computer.

Our editors are honored to be part of this special occasion, and we look forward to sharing more inspiration and enduring, beautiful designs on our website, pacificweddings.com, and our daily Love Notes blog. Feel free to email us your feedback at weddings@pacificweddings.com.

started*

Whether you are planning a hometown event or a wedding away, one of the first decisions you should make in planning your nuptials is where you will hold the ceremony and reception. Do you prefer the sanctity of a church or the rhythms of the ocean? The formality of a ballroom or dining under the stars? With so many idyllic locations, obtaining a coordinator is an excellent start. Event planners can alleviate stress, and most importantly, they are familiar with the local territory, including sites, vendors and rental options. Consult The List to find a company that suits your style.

The ruins of the old Haiku Sugar Mill, once a thriving enterprise back in the 1850s, have been lovingly restored over the last twenty years into a kind of secret garden. Tucked away in the lush landscape of Maui's hills, this is a place that inspires romantic reveries. Girls, young and old, step through the ancient archway and, without fail, an audible sigh escapes their lips. Ornate cast iron columns rescued from the Paris flea markets now stand in the old mill, along with other French antiques that present owner, Sylvia Hamilton-Kerr, procured to transform the mill. She shares the story of the columns, which originated in the "belly" of Paris known as Les Halles, an open market where Parisians shopped for fresh produce and consumables. Historically, the whole market was held up with columns designed by Francois Balthere, a premier architect and designer in France during the same period the mill was being built. Sylvia and her beau enjoyed traveling through the south of France to gather these antique treasures along with other important pieces, such as the statues from Isle-sur-la-Sorgue. "It has been a labor of love for both of us," says Sylvia.

after-dinner delights

The growing trend to offer individual sweets in lieu of a traditional wedding cake gives the bride and groom an opportunity to share a few of their family favorites. Chef Michelle Nakaya recommends five delicious after-dinner treats that will end the evening on a high note. [CLOCKWISE FROM UPPER LEFT] Amaretto mousse rimmed with chocolate ganache and topped with Amaretti cookie crisp; Port wine and cherry mousse with figs; Kahlua cake trifle with Kahlua-infused whipped cream; Courvoisier with chocolate shavings
